The Bazaar collection is an exploration of world cultures through thoughtful motifs and color. The textile industry at large is being driven by consumers that desire to embrace heritage alongside cultural fusions in a modern context. Such techniques include tie dye, shibori indigo dyeing, sashiko stitching and traditional mud cloth patterns. These techniques have a characteristic handmade quality to them making them feel inviting, familiar and warm.

Deco Gallery is a fusion of 1920s art deco interspersed with fresh floral motifs. Observing trends in home and fashion the use of bold linear elements alongside flowery designs inspired Deco Gallery's usage of medallion motifs and softer floral elements. To highlight our fabrics they contain yarns with sheen and luster accentuating ornate design elements, paying homage to this century's upcoming roaring twenties.

The Memphis Movement was brought about in the 1980s by collaborative Italian design group the Memphis Group. They sought to push the status quo by incorporating bright colors and dramatic asymmetry into their designs. Our collection is a facet of its modern revival driven by strong linework, playful geometric design and movement within the pattern.
